Washington — Government officials have determined to adopt a policy of comprehensive inquiry into all airplane accidents.

Hitherto there has been a feeling of apprehension and timidity on the part of some of the people in the aviation industry who felt that too much publicity about accidents could tend to diminish public confidence and interfere with the expanded interest in airplane travel.

The present disturbance started Monday night when a small eruption of smoke and gas burst from the mountain. Yesterday a crater 150 feet wide opened on the volcano and continued slight activity was observed.

The governor of Martinique hastened to Saint Pierre to inspect the situation.

Mont Pelee is the culminating point of a cluster of volcanic mountains in the north of the French island of Martinique in the West Indies, where one of the most appalling eruptions in history occurred in May, 1902. St. Pierre was wiped out and only one ship in the harbor escaped destruction.The disaster started with a heavy fall of ashes such as had been noted during the present disturbance. A few days later a heavy eruption destroyed extensive sugar plantations.

On May 8 the final catastrophe occurred, without warning, a mass of fire, comparing to a flaming whirlwind, swept over St. Pierre.

A fall of molten lava and ashes followed the flames, accompanied by se gases which asphyxiated those who had previously escaped. Serious suggestions were made that the island be evacuated, but although one tenth of it was devastated it recovered economically much sooner than had been expected.

POLES FOR SAFETY

The airplane industry is making any studies and researches on the factor of safety and while much is yet to be learned about the factors of piloting an airplane in stormy weather which comes up unexpectedly, it is a foregone conclusion that the airplanes have earnedvaluable lesson in the recent accidents and that they will be designed to avoid carrying out their duties, even though it causes inconvenience to passengers, if there is the slightest chance of bad weather.

changing management of the home.The present board of managers is abolished in favor of a board com-

the governor for six year terms, all of whom must be members of the

of other than G. A. R. members to the board, and a long line of protests by G. A. R. members and conventions.

The bill also made financial provisions for the home.

UNION WORKER

24-year-old organizer for the National Textile Workers union, was taken from his home in Kings Mountain early today, spirited by three men across the South Carolina line and beaten. He was brought to Charlotte after reporting to Sheriff Wright of Gaffney, S. C.His story, for the most part, was told for him here by Linton M. Oak, publicity director for the International Labor defense, Oak informing newspapermen that Tessner had been choked so badly his throat was sore.

Tessner was informed he was four miles from Blacksburg, S. C., and nine miles from Gaffney, S. C. He called the police at Blacksburg, asking them to come and get him. When told that the police could not come and he called Sheriff Wright at Gaffney.

Tessner said before calling the sheriff he showed Smith and his son where the flogging occurred.

Sheriff Wright took Tessner to Blacksburg and later he hailed a truck and came to Charlotte with the sheriff.

He was seen in bed in a hotel room here which is occupied by Bill Dunne, secretary of communist party, in America.

Tessner showed gashes on his back and legs and several severe gashes on his chest.

Kings Mountain is in Cleveland county, approximately 30 miles from Charlotte.

Tessner said he could identify the men.

Tessner said he could identify the knock at the door of his home about 1 o'clock this morning and that when his wife went to see who it was, she was informed by the three men that they had a warrant for Tessner's arrest.They entered and ordered him to get out of bed. When he told them to read the warrant, he was grabbed and

ZEP BACK HOME AFTER WELCOMING ECKENER

Friedrichshafen, Germany — (AP) — The Graf Zeppelin landed before her home hangar at 7:24 this morning, returning safely with her 22 passengers from the trip to the mouth of the Elbe to welcome home to Germany from America Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible en route.

The Graf circled several times over the New York, exchanged wireless greetings and then flew at a lower level while Frau Eckener, one of the passengers on the airship, waved a welcome to her husband aboard the liner. A laurel wreath for Doctor Eckener was "rapped" on the ship and then the Zep nosed southward toward Friedrichshafen.

Yesterday they sat in their boat at the mouth of the Fox river near LeFevre. He fired at a flock of ducks. His friend, in the front of the boat, stood up and received the full charge in his head.

LeFevre brought his companion to a hospital here where he died three hours later.

See Menace To 5-Power Meet In U. S.; British Accord

ITALY, JAPAN, FRANCE TO AIR OWN DEMANDS

Speech by French Minister of Marine Regarded as Significant

Washington — (AP) — Invitations to the five power naval conference proposed to be held late in January will be issued by Premier Ramsay MacDonald in the near future, but the exact time remains to be determined.

Paris — (AP) — Over-emphasis of the preliminary naval accord between the United States and Great Britain may endanger the success of the projected five power naval conference, in the opinion of some observers here of the international political situation.

France, Italy and Japan all will want to have their say when the conference meets. It is pointed out, and it would be a grave mistake for anybody to imagine these powers will be disposed to walk up and sign on the dotted line.

In this connection significance is attached to a speech delivered by the French Minister of Marine, M. Georges Leygues, last night when he stressed the growing importance of the role of the navy in the life of nations. M. Leygues praised France's contribution to international justice and understanding but warned that France would resist all efforts "open or hidden" which aim at the destruction of European equilibrium or at modification of the position established at the end of the World war which would be intended to benefit former enemy nations.

SECURITY FIRST

"International solidarity, yes," said the minister, "but first of all liberty and security for France."

The inferior ratio fixed for France and Italy at the Washington conference regarding capital ships had so little pleased these countries since it is stated, that naval experts of many nations have been expecting that France and Italy would denounce their treaty with its battleship ratio of five-five-three for the United States, Great Britain and Japan in the order named and 1.75 for France and Italy.

Japan, France and Italy are all said to deem possession of submarines necessary for the independence of their coasts and it is believed in competent French quarters that all would oppose any plan to abolish submarines while allowing for the construction of powerful battleships and 10,000 ton cruisers.

Moreover, several recent political developments provide Frenchmen with the opportunity of interpreting the Anglo-American naval accord as the precursor to a gigantic Anglo-American political understanding which would tend to strengthen British political power in Europe, the near and far east. They see in the British reopening at Geneva of the problem of trained army reserves an inexplicable attempt to muss up disarmament machinery which already is running smoothly.

They also regard China's recent move at Geneva to secure the revision of treaties "deemed inapplicable" as the opening gun in the battle to bring about remodeling of the Paris peace treaties after the World war.

In other words, political questions are beginning to affect and render more difficult a settlement of the technical problems of naval ratios and reductions, according to these observers. The conviction prevails in most reliable circles that it would be a grave error to allow international political jealousies to grow up and strangle desirable efforts to eliminate the armaments race and reduce armament burdens and consequently, the moment has arrived to assure France that nothing will be done to check France's legitimate development as a great world power.

TRUSTEES DECIDE ON FRANKS BOY MEMORIAL

Chicago — (AP) — The Bobby Franks memorial to perpetuate the memory of the child victim of the Loeb-Leopold "thrill murder" has been decided upon by the trustees named in the will of Bobby's father, who died 18 months ago.

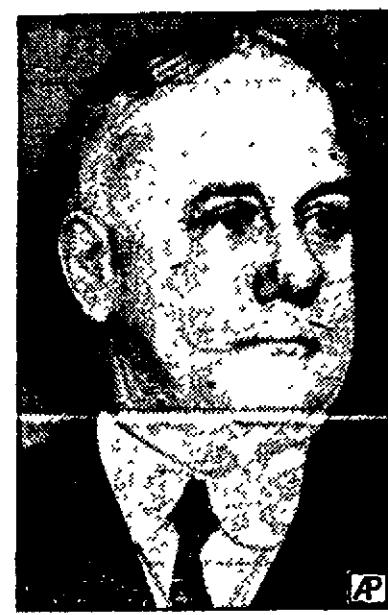

The American Boys' Commonwealth has been chosen as beneficiary under the elder Franks' $100,000 bequest. The choice was made, the trustees explained, in keeping with the father's desire as expressed in the will.

The type of memorial I desire my trustees shall establish shall be a fitting memorial to perpetuate the memory of my boy, who would desire that any memorial in his name should be one that would give pleasure, help and lend encouragement to boys, as he in his lifetime gave sympathy, encouragement and consideration to his playmates.

One half of the $100,000 will be voted to improving the property of the American Boys' Commonwealth. The other half will be sequestered as a trust out of which from time to time help may be given boys in connection with the work of the Commonwealth.

Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., are serving life sentences at Joliet for the murder of the Franks boy.

WILLIAM S. VARE

WARE KEEPS HIS GRIP ON PARTY HELM

His Candidates Win Overwhelming Victory at Philadelphia Polls

Philadelphia — (AP) — United States Senator-elect William S. Vare still had a tight grasp on the leadership of the Philadelphia Republican organization today, despite the efforts of the Republican league to unseat him.

The candidates slated by Vare for nomination for county offices swept to an overwhelming victory in yesterday's primary election, the real fight being for control of the party machinery.

The battle centered around the office of register of wills, for which William F. Campbell, slated by the organization for a third term, was opposed by John F. Dugan, candidate of the Republican league.

Campbell had a lead of more than 165,000. Returns from 1,526 of 1,590 divisions gave Campbell 279,627 and Dugan 112,789.

The other Vare-slated candidates, George E. Kemp, for city treasurer; and Fred Schwarz, Jr., for coroner, won by even larger pluralities.

The Republican league, headed by Thomas Haeburn White, for years a leader in independent Republican circles, was supported by Mayor Harry A. Mackey and his friends. Mr. Mackey, who managed Vare's senatorial campaign in 1926, broke with the organization when the senator-elect refused to state John Dugan, a member of the mayor's cabinet, for register of wills.

MAYOR DENIES CHARGE

The mayor denied accusation of Vare leaders that he was using the Republican league to further his ambition to be governor of Pennsylvania. He declared that his action was solely in the interest of economy and efficiency in municipal government and clean elections and to defeat the "fee-grabbing" candidates of the organization.

The result of the primary was hailed by Vare leaders as a personal victory for the senator-elect.

"The vote in reality," said James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican city committee, "is a mandate of the people that they will not tolerate a mayor playing politics. I want to emphasize that all of the ward leaders who supported the ticket recognized the leadership of William S. Vare and will acknowledge it in the future."

Harry C. Davis, executive director of the Republican central campaign committee, said:

"The overwhelming victory of the candidates of the Republican organization is a triumph of Senator Vare. To him is due the credit of this great victory over men and interests who conspired not only against his political leadership, but sought to take advantage of his illness to drive him to his grave. The victory further solidifies the leadership of Senator Vare of the Republican organization."

Boys' Lodge Approved and Ritual Ratified at Houston Convention

Houston, Texas — (AP) — A mass of lodge legislation was before the International convention of Odd Fellows for consideration today.

With the election of officers out of the way and work completed on the important question, that of a junior lodge for boys 14 to 18 years old, the session was expected to be one of the highlights of the convention.

A ritual for the boys' lodge was ratified yesterday. The Odd Fellows had considered establishing the junior order for several years but convention delegates had been unable to agree on the details until yesterday.

Formation of the boys' lodges was made optional with each locality.

Simultaneously with the action of the sovereign lodge on the boys' order came the report of a recommendation of the Rebekahs that a junior organization for girls be established.

This recommendation may be held over until another year.

RESOLUTION AIMED AT BISHOP VOTED DOWN

Charlotte, N. C. — (AP) — The Associated Press yesterday carried a story under a Reidsville, N. C., dateline stating that the quarterly conference of the Yanceyville circuit of the Western North Carolina conference of the Methodist Episcopal church South had on Monday adopted a resolution condemning alleged stock market dealings of Bishop James Cannon, Jr. This story was in error.

The quarterly conference at which the resolution was presented was held several months ago, the Rev. John C. Wooten of Durham, presiding elder of the Durham district, said yesterday. The presiding elder at the quarterly conference, said that there were approximately 30 persons present and entitled to vote and that approximately six votes were cast on the Cannon resolution.

The Associated Press is glad to make this correction.

Topeka Drink Charges Stir Up Teapot Tempest

Topeka, Kas. — (AP) — The storm of public discussion and official investigation aroused in this capital of the first prohibition state by a statement of Jay E. House, Philadelphia newspaper columnist, that he was served liquor in 13 or 14 Topeka homes visited by him last winter and that an average of four drinking parties to the city block was maintained nightly, appeared to today to have been but a tempest in a teapot.

In a letter to A. J. Carruth, Jr., managing editor of the Topeka State Journal, read before a group of investigating state officials yesterday, House, a former mayor of Topeka, termed his statements "fol-de-rol."

The charges which so stirred the city and the state were made by the Philadelphia writer in a letter to the Rev. J. A. McClellan, superintendent of the Kansas Anti-Saloon league. McClellan published the letter and Governor Clyde M. Reed ordered Attorney General William A. Smith and Shawnee-co officials to ascertain whether anything in House's charges warranted criminal prosecution.

Six of the 13 hosts whom House said served liquor, denied when questioned by Smith, that they had liquor in their homes or had seen any served in other homes the writer visited.

State Finishes Its Case In Giese Ouster Hearing

KELLY AVERS KEMP IN ON BRIBE SPLIT

Former Turnkey Says Sheriff
Agreed to Three Way
Division of Money

The prosecution in the ouster proceedings against Sheriff Fred W. Giese rested its case Tuesday afternoon and the defense started its efforts to clear the sheriff of the charges of corruption placed before Governor Walter J. Kohler by Stanley A. Stadl, district attorney.

Henry W. Tuttrup, president of the First National bank and Otto W. Schlafer, of the Schlafer Hardware company, testified that Walter Scherck, a former deputy sheriff, had approached them and told them that's "shakeup" was to take place and that Sheriff Giese probably would be removed. In case the sheriff was removed he said to both men, he wanted to know if they would write to Governor Kohler and recommend him for the job.

FINISH WITH KELLY

The early part of Tuesday afternoon's session was given over to completing the cross examination of Dan Kelly, former turnkey at the jail. Kelly told how he kept a record of the prisoners while he was at the county jail and he admitted that he made a record which showed that Robert Rausch, Neenan, and Dan Lyons, Chicago, had served their full sentences.

Rausch was sentenced to 10 days for drunkenness and Lyons for five days on the same charge. Both men had been given the alternative of paying a $10 fine.

Previously Kelly testified that Lyons was released a few hours after he was taken to jail when he paid his fine. He also testified that Rausch also was released, a day after he was brought to jail, on payment of his fine. The money for the fines, Kelly alleged, was divided by himself and Giese. The county records show that the money never was turned over to the municipal court and that the sheriff collected board for the two prisoners for the length of the time they were sentenced.

Kelly admitted that the sheriff made up his records from notes prepared by Kelly but said that Lyons and Rausch were released with the sheriff's knowledge.

INVOLVES KEMP

Kelly also said Tuesday afternoon that Lothar Kemp, a deputy sheriff still serving under Giese, had definite knowledge of the collection of bribe money and that Kelly and the sheriff had agreed to take Kemp in as a "partner" in the business. Kelly said that, Kemp received $15 of the $90 bribe collected from "Henry Van Camp," operator of a still in the town of Grand Chute, and that he had promised a share of any payments made by Van Camp.

Giese objected at first to admitting a third party to their dealings, Kelly said, but afterwards said it was all right for Kemp to be admitted.

Kelly also said the sheriff instructed him to make arrangements to sell a still taken in raid by federal officials and left at the county jail for safe keeping. Kelly said he offered the still to Charles Clunes of Kaukauna for $200.

The diamond-studded gold star which was given to Sheriff Giese by the Spanish American War veterans cost $200, according to testimony given by Carl Tennie, Appleton jeweler, who made the sale. Tennie said the star was sold to Louis Jeske and Art Jones. Jeske paid $100 in cash at one time and Jones gave a note to cover the balance, Tennie said. The star was sold at a discount, the jeweler testified, and it would ordinarily have cost about $300.

How Kelly had approached her and her husband and told them to try to persuade their son, Lothar, to resign as a deputy was told by Mrs. Charles Kemp, a defense witness. She said Kelly approached her and her husband on June 14.

"We have Giese just where we want him. He'll have to resign," Kelly was quoted by Mrs. Kemp.

She also said that Kelly told them if their son would resign he would get his appointment again when Giese was removed. Kelly also said he was going to be appointed turnkey again after Giese's removal.

Harold K. Derus, an Appleton Post-Crescent reporter, testified that he had written several articles at the request of Sheriff Giese in which slot machine operators and saloon keepers were warned that violators of the law were to be arrested and punished. He testified he thought some raids took place after these articles appeared in the newspaper.

PANTAGES TRIAL WAITS FOR JUDGE TO ISSUE RULING

Defense Contends Japanese Gardener Was Victim of Asphyxiation

Los Angeles—(AP)—Attorneys in the second degree murder trial of Mrs. Lois Pantages today awaited Judge Carlos S. Hardy's decision on the defense's plea for admission of evidence, which it was promised would show Juro Rokumoto, Japanese gardener, died of asphyxiation rather than injuries received in a collision between his motor car and that of the theatre magnate's wife.

In arguments on the plea yesterday during which the jury was absent from the court room, the defense contention that the Japanese died of asphyxiation while undergoing an operation was met by the prosecution with the statement that the plea was immaterial as the operation was necessary because of Rokumoto's injuries. The argument began after Mrs. Pantages was exonerated from the stand, with the announcement by Max Steur, chief counsel for the defense, that he would call witnesses to show the operation during which Rokumoto died was unnecessary, and the man "was asphyxiated by an anesthetic given him."

"The operation, made against Rokumoto's wishes, was unnecessary, and he was suffering no shock from accident injuries at the time. Rokumoto died of asphyxiation of the anaesthetic given him, and no anesthetic should have been given him at the time," Steur said. He stated he had five physicians ready to testify.

Mrs. Pantages denied prosecution allegations she was intoxicated and drove to the left side of Sunset-blvd into Rokumoto's car. She said "I had not had a drink of any intoxicating liquor that day, and I tried so hard to miss Rokumoto's automobile when he turned in front of me." She added another automobile forced her to the wrong side of the street.

At the close of the session, Judge Hardy said his investigation had proved remarks made by the Rev. R. P. Shuler over his radio last Sunday that the Pantages' jury was hung before a line of testimony was taken was unwarranted, unproved and without foundation. A committee of three appointed by the Los Angeles County Bar association heard its findings to Judge Hardy. The committee stated no evidence or corroboration had been found.

Pfehl as bankruptcy trustee charged that McCormick deeded all his property to Mrs. McCormick in an effort to avoid paying his debts when he later went into bankruptcy and is seeking to have the debt to 132 acres of land in Oneida transferred back to McCormick's name so creditors may realize something.

McCormick answered the complaint by claiming the property was transferred to his wife to repay her for money he had borrowed from her since their marriage.

ANOTHER UNION MAN ABDUCTED, WHIPPED

The men conferred while the other watched him. At the end of a long bridge, he said, they again halted and this time forced him to accompany them to some dense woods.

There they pulled "clubs" from the trees and flogged him. When they had finished, Tessner said, one of the men looked up to a nearby tree and remarked: "There's a good limb to hang him on." Something was said about getting a rope and another of the men asked if an inner tube wouldn't be long enough. They dealt him a few more blows, one of which was on his chest and which was, he said, responsible for a jagged wound several inches long.

They ordered him to "take to the woods" and as he ran fired a shot.

After about 20 minutes, Tessner said, he left his hiding place and walked to a house nearby in which a man by the name of E. L. Smith was living.

"I called him and he came to the door. I asked him to give me something to wear but he said he had a patient at the point of death and for me to go somewhere else. I told him I wouldn't leave without some clothes and he gave me a pair of overalls."

Tessner explained that one of Smith's relatives in the house was very ill. Tessner said he showed his wounds to Smith and his son.

BURN UNION STAND

A speaker's stand erected by the Union on a vacant lot on Piedmont-ave and from which union leaders addressed mill workers every Saturday night was dynamited a half hour before Tessner was seized.

Mr. Rademacher has represented the stand since it was erected by the union leaders.

BROOKHART BODY DIGS UP FEDERAL PATRONAGE DIRT

"Sales" of Federal Offices in Southern States Is Charged

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington — For more than a year now, Senator Brookhart's committee investigating federal patronage has been digging up the dirt in the purchase and sale of federal offices which everyone knew lay below the surface but which no one had ever exposed before in a large way. The investigation has been more or less coincident with an announced change of patronage policy on the part of the administration, and the general result has been that Republican bosses in the south are finding poor pickings instead of their customary profitable assessments on federal officeholders who owe them their jobs.

The Brookhart committee has actually been into Georgia and Texas and sitting in Washington, has heard witnesses from South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi and Kentucky.

INVESTIGATE A SUICIDE

First off, the committee went into Georgia. The investigation originally was aimed at conditions there. Senators George and Harris, following the suicide of a postmaster who was reported to have been severely harassed for political contributions, demanded it and Senator George introduced the resolution on which the inquiry was based.

There the committee found four or five men who had set up shop as the Republican party of Georgia, headed by Ben Davis, Republican national committeeman. Davis was drawing $250 a month. The state treasurer drew the same. The committee seized an assortment of cards which gave the names of postmasters and postmistresses and their periodical payments to the "party." This was the money that went to pay salaries and expenses. Expenses were incurred when a collector went around and rounded up the delinquents. Also when Ben Davis used to have to go to Washington to see about the federal appointments.

It was charged that as much as $500 had been paid for a single rural letter carrier's job. It was testified for instance, that John W. Martin, treasurer of the Republican state central committee, had offered a re-appointment of one postmistress for a contribution, mentioning the sum of $500. The money wasn't paid and there was no reappointment. In Georgia, as in other states, there was testimony that federal jobs were handed out on a basis of returned contributions if the contributor didn't get the job. Sometimes the jobseekers got their money back in such cases and sometimes not.

WHAT HAPPENED IN MISSISSIPPI

Partly through the committee and partly through the Department of Justice, the Perry Howard organization in Mississippi appears to have been thoroughly exposed. Howard had a $6000 job here as special assistant attorney general and maintained offices on Pennsylvania avenue, where he dealt with patronage. One Mr. A. P. Russell testified that when Howard wired him to come to Washington and "bring recommendations" it means to bring $1500 for a marshalship. Russell did and got the job. Then he resigned because "those negroes down there wanted to sell things around the office and Patton (a close friend of Howard) wanted to be around the office drunk."

Russell said his successor paid $2000 for his appointment. Howard was indicted last year and prosecuted by Mabel Willebrandt, but was acquitted. The committee heard evidence tending to show that one federal officeholder lost his job because he testified against Howard. The record also shows that Howard deposited $31,000 in banks while in Washington, above his salary.

In the Texas situation the committee met Republican National Committeeman R. B. Creager, who vigorously denied testimony that contributors were promised their money back if the state G. O. P. didn't get jobs or them and combatated charges that he had tried to defeat Harry M. Wurzbach, the only Texas Republican congressman, so that Creager couldn't have to split up the patronage. It was admitted that 982 federal officeholders had given promissory notes and that 457 had made cash donations, but insisted that they were outnumbered in each instance by non-officeholders. Creager denied

Talks To Parents

SENTIMENTALITY
BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

Demonstrations which are greater than the emotion behind them are false and worthless things.

Only a person of little sensibility deceives, through them, both himself and others into thinking him a person of great emotional depths.

The easy pouring forth of feelings on trivial occasions is a mark of the sentimental. He who weeps hot tears over a fallen sparrow is not, one feels, a citadel of spiritual strength or even of ordinary good sense.

The sentimental parent quite unconsciously offers to his child counterfeit feelings and dishonest demonstrations. His excess of apparent emotions twists the world out of focus for his child. His false values, his dramatizations of feeling, are confusing and distressing to one who is trying to find his way amid the complexities of an adult world.

To such a parent the child reacts either with an unconscious imitation which must cheapen the quality of his own emotional experience, or with an inner shrinking which must make him profoundly unhappy.

For he must learn to reflect much of the ideals which his father and mother represent to him. He must learn to be secretive of those things he cherishes and to find his spiritual values without help from them. Illusionism has come to him too soon and from the wrong quarter.

Most painful of all to such a child is to be called upon to give evidence of his affection in words and kisses and caresses; for these things have been cheapened for him through their sentimental exploitation. For his whole life, perhaps, they have been robbed of much of their special significance and joy.

Officeholders were assessed 10 per cent of their salaries.

LEVIED ON SALARIES

A witness from South Carolina told the committee that National Committeeman Joseph W. Tolbert had given him to understand after the Harding election that 20 per cent of all salaries would have to be paid in subject to Tolbert's drawing for campaign expenses. Harding had referred the witness to Tolbert. Evidence was given of specific payments. Tolbert came back with numerous affidavits from federal jobholders in which nothing was admitted other than "purely voluntary" contributions. Recently a postmistress who made one of these affidavits wrote to the committee as follows:

"I cannot sleep at night. I want to make my peace with God. I will tell how much I paid for the post-office as well as others."

The Brookhart committee, which is likely to continue its inquiry indefinitely, will be glad to hear from other postmasters, marshals and other federal officials who have paid politicians for their jobs.

AERONAUTIC COURSES TAUGHT AT UNIVERSITY

Seattle, Wash.—(UPI) Widening the scope of its activities, the University of Washington will add several courses in aeronautics to its curriculum next fall upon completion of a new $290,000 building donated by the Daniel Guggenheim fund for aeronautics.

The new building, which will be soon, will give the university a home for a school that will be one of the most complete of its kind in the world. A contract for erection of the structure was awarded after several months of preliminary work in preparing courses to meet requirements of the fund.

Courses to be taught this fall include airplane performance, aerial design, aerial propulsion, specialized aeronautical designs, aerial transportation, aerial navigation and airships. Advanced courses will be offered in all subjects.

The Guggenheim foundation awarded the building fund to the University of Washington because of a belief that the growth of aviation in the Pacific northwest will require such a school and because one of the largest airplane manufacturing plants in the United States is located here. Work which the university already had accomplished was taken into consideration.

GOVERNOR KOHLER WINS

Gov. Kohler has won his first legal skirmish with his political adversaries who are seeking to oust him on charges of violation of the corrupt practices act. Judge James Wickham of Eau Claire, before whom the case is being tried has sustained the demurral filed by the governor's attorneys, alleging no cause of action on the ground that only the legislature has jurisdiction over an attempt to remove the chief executive and that the proper proceedings are by impeachment. The point will, of course, be appealed to the supreme court, which will entail further delay until a ruling can be had from that body.

This newspaper looks upon the ouster proceedings as a political enterprise, without merit in fact or law except in a possibly technical interpretation. It is, we believe, malicious persecution of a governor who unquestionably was elected without corruption of any kind against an unscrupulous machine that utilized every method in its power to discredit and defeat him. This machine has been unable to swallow its chagrin and bitterness.

Regardless of these facts, however, we would prefer to see the court rule the other way on the demurral submitted by the governor's attorneys. If the charges against the governor related to acts committed after the election and inauguration, there is no question but what under the constitution he could be tried only by impeachment. But the offenses charged occurred before his election and are covered by the corrupt practices act. We see no reason why a person elected to the governorship should have immunity against criminal prosecution or legal efforts to disqualify him in such a case. If he violated the law it affected his right to the governorship.

The issue, it seems to us, ought to be tried in the courts. If submitted to the legislature it would be a political decision pure and simple, and would have no relation whatsoever to the merits of the case. If the sustaining of the demurral is upheld by the supreme court it will undoubtedly lead to a move to amend the constitution so as to give the courts jurisdiction in the trial of offenses under the corrupt practices act. While the result may be a technical victory for the governor, it is not in our opinion a victory for commonsense and the political well-being of the state.

MUSSOLINI EASES OFF

Mussolini may not be a Caesar after all. He starts decentralizing himself. He will not be the whole cabinet any more. He gives up seven cabinet posts, retaining only two, and appoints an entirely new ministry. Why this sudden change? Is the Duce sick? Have his superhuman labors worn him out? Has he had a change of heart? Is he going back on Fascism?

It is said that he regards Fascism as entering a new phase, in which the emphasis is to be economic; that he is willing to let subordinates run the various departments of government along Fascist lines, while he concentrates his own efforts on modernizing Italian industry, trade and agriculture. So he will be a Big Business premier. Some observers think the stage is set for gradual abolition of the Fascist party, and perhaps an alliance with the clerical party.

Whatever the program, delegation of much of the power seized and wielded so ruthlessly by Mussolini is a good sign. It is not well for Italy or any other country to be ruled by "one only man." Tyranny, in spite of its specious success, cannot long continue in this modern, democratic world. By relaxing his dictatorial rule, Mussolini may avoid future revolution.

DESPOILING WISCONSIN BEAUTY

It now appears that the plan of the Insull Power interests to develop water power on the Wolf river through the Menominee Reservation is to succeed. The Indians themselves, who have decided they wish the development to take place, solely on the ground that they need the money they will get from a sale of the rights. Some five dams will be built and the scenic beauty of the Wolf river in this particular district practically destroyed.

The question as to whether the Wolf river was to be despoiled by the power interests has been before the people of Wisconsin for several years. Various organizations and public spirited citizens have done all they could to prevent this calamity. The people, however, have remained indifferent, notwithstanding the fact that all of the benefits from preserving this beauty spot would accrue to them. It has seemed to be impossible to arouse public opinion against this spoliation.

The Menominee Reservation is a magnificent tract of land, for many years the one remaining extensive piece of virgin timber in the state. It is so beautiful, affording such splendid facilities for all phases of outdoor life, including camping, fishing, hunting, etc., that it ought to be preserved, either as a state or national playground. The day will come when Wisconsin will regret that this reservation has been exploited for commercial gain.

Nevertheless, one cannot wholly blame the Indians for the stand they have taken. They assert that they are not adequately provided for by the government and that the returns from logging and other work are not sufficient to give them a decent existence. They further point to the fact that whereas the white man has disposed of practically all available power sites in the state for his enrichment, having no regard for conservation of natural resources and beauty, the Indian alone is expected to sacrifice his interests and his welfare by resisting this final encroachment of power corporations. We agree with him that this is asking a little too much.

If the people of Wisconsin had the concern for their natural resources that they ought to have and desired to conserve them, they would not put it up to the Indian to make sacrifices in their behalf. On the contrary, they would raise funds by legislative appropriation or by some other means to reimburse the Indians in the amount their power rights would be salable for. Since they exhibit no intention of doing this and appear to be indifferent to what becomes of the reservation, certainly the Indians cannot be blamed for doing as they propose to do and realizing on their possessions. It is a great misfortune to Wisconsin that this is to be the termination of the matter, and, as we have pointed out, the day will come when it will rue its mistaken failure to act to prevent this foolish and unnecessary exploitation of what remains of the Wolf river.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

"English," writes Janet Rankin Aiken in the Bookman, "has 26 alphabet letters, 21 for consonants and five for vowels. English has some 44 sounds, 24 consonantal and 20 vocalic. To represent those 44 sounds in spelling, English has well over 400 separate orthographic combinations, making an average of 10 possible spellings per sound. What can you do with a language like that?"

Ask teacher. She knows. And what Billy and Bobby and Mary are doing with it in their school exercises is not a whole lot worse than what their parents may be doing with it in their own literary and orthographic struggles.

"And yet there is a charm about it," admits the writer. There is, indeed. It is a language of power. Not only vocal but written power. It is a language so rich and flexible that almost anything can be done with it.

The spelling is dreadful. Its inconsistencies and absurdities retard its conquest of the world and probably take a year or two out of the life of school children. Yet there is a charm even in this chaotic orthography—see the mark! "Orthography" should mean "straight writing."

Bad as it is, see how people love it, and what a roar there is whenever any engineering-minded speller proposes reforming it so that letters will always have the same value and words will be spelt as they sound.

WITHOUT BENEFIT OF BATON

Having found out what to do with piano soloists, the "Conductorless Symphony orchestra, an artistic innovation in America, is prepared for its second season.

The orchestra is copied after the first of its kind, the Persefons of Moscow, now eight years old. Having no conductor to lead them, the musicians had to seat themselves in elliptical rows so they could watch each other.

The New York group got along all right until the problem of the piano soloist arose. It had patterned its seating arrangement from a photograph kindly sent over by the Russians. But there had been no piano soloist in the picture.

So this summer the concert master, a Mr. Stillman, went over to Russia. He learned that if the piano was placed on a platform near the percussion instruments, everybody could follow the soloist and all would be well.

The orchestra also has been looking around for "angels" to pay its deficits until it becomes self-supporting. Michel Bernstein, executive committee chairman—the organization is co-operative—said its needs are much less than those of an orchestra with a high-priced conductor, like Toscanini, for instance, whose wage is said to be $60,000 a season.

Last winter the infant orchestra's members gave four concerts and themselves paid the deficit. This season, however, six wealthy men are on the advisory board, headed by Irwin S. Chanin, the builder of skyscrapers and theaters, and Ralph Jones, banker.

The 88 musicians in the orchestra are mostly recruits from those left unemployed after the New York Symphony-Philharmonic consolidation a year ago.

Their first season was rather trying. Most of the members had to get work in opera, theater or movie orchestras and therefore could rehearse only after midnight. At that hour it's difficult to hire a hall. Several landlords protested that 88 men fiddling, tooting and drum-beating in one room at 3 a. m., would be sure to bring all the neighborhood police. Finally a hall was found far enough away from sleeping citizens who might be awakened by Tchaikovsky's Fourth symphony.

UNKNOWN BOSS

A young executive was recently installed in the home office here of a large concern that has branches throughout the country. The first day he wrote a letter to one of the branch managers, signing it over his title.

Several days later came this telegram to the company: "Do you know a guy named S— who calls himself vice president?"

"Which is similar to the late Houdini's experience with a theater manager. He introduced himself as "the great Houdini."

"And who," said the manager, "is the great Houdini?"

THE CHILD KEEPS DRY IF HE SO DESIRES

Next to a psychologist explaining anything under the sun whether it happens or not, there is probably nothing quite so plausible and imposing, if you know what I mean, as a neurologist, vulgarly known as a "nervy specialist," telling the ordinary dull doctors how to cure maladies, such as enuresis. Ralph C. Hamil, M. D., assures us that the successful management of bedwetting in children is summed up in the following conclusions.

"Enuresis is a conduct disorder."

"It is stopped, when the child so desires."

"It is of prime importance that the child should assume responsibility for its conduct in its sleep."

"All other forms of treatment are against the child's interest. (Shades of Druggist Coué.)"

"This assumption of responsibility depends on a number of factors, some of which may be beyond the physician's control. Some, however, depend on the entente established between physician and child."

"Of course if Dr. Hamil is correct in his conception that bed wetting is a conduct disorder, and not a functional trouble, caused by some morbid or pathological condition, then this method of dealing with the disorder seems sound enough. In any case, the sort of suggestion he advises merits the consideration of every parent or guardian of such a child."

"Thus, Dr. Hamil points out, many men having matters of importance on the docket for next day are able to say, 'I'll wake at 5 tomorrow morning, instead of 7—and do it. A mother sleeping beside her sick child is undisturbed by the roar of passing traffic, but wakes at once if the child's breathing changes slightly. Many people sleep through any kind of noise, yet awake quickly if some one calls them quietly by name."

"Dr. Hamil does not say so in so many words, but cites numerous cases to show how important it is to impress upon the child that the wetting will stop when the child wants it to stop, yet this must be done with kindness, patients and real sympathy. On the other hand, it is just as important to see that the whole idea of responsibility is not destroyed by the wrong attitude of parent or guardian. For instance, it is a great mistake for the mother to offer the child an excuse for the failure of responsibility by explaining, 'He doesn't know when he does it; he sleeps so soundly.' He does know when he fails to be responsible for his conduct in his sleep, whether he can recall what happened or not, on waking. Nor should parents provide other alibis for the child, such as, 'He comes by it naturally, for I had the same trouble until I was 12.'

"The age from 2 to 3 years is the time when sound training is most effective in establishing in the child's mind or character the idea of responsibility for his conduct in sleep."

"It is rather notorious that such procedures as tonsillectomy and circumcision, undertaken with the hope of correcting bad wetting, seldom prove effective. Dr. Hamil inveighs against such treatment particularly because it confuses the picture in the child's mind and excuses the child for failure to take responsibility."

"In 80 cases in a public clinic, the bed wetting was entirely stopped in 40 under Dr. Hamil's method of training."

COMMISSION WILL REPLACE WATER, LIGHT COMMITTEE

Resolution Authorizing Change Is Adopted by Common Council

Menasha—The water and light committee, which has had charge of the municipal utility plant for several years, will be succeeded by a commission. It was the alderman's second attempt, within the last few months to bring about the change.

Alderman Small inquired about the salary of members and was informed they will act without compensation, the same as the board of education or the park committee. Alderman Coyle inquired as to the manner of selecting the commission and was informed that would be done by the council. "IRISH LANDLORD"
ROLE HAS APPEAL FOR ALFRED SMITH

Recent Candidate for President Heads New Building Organization

BY DONALD C. BOLLES
New York — (AP) — The man who came up from the tenements of America's metropolis to be governor of New York and knock at the door of the White House is to be a ruler again.

An "Irish landlord" is what Alfred E. Smith calls his new role as the virtual head of a city of 60,000 persons that now is in the making but a ruler nevertheless.

It will be a unique community, a city within a city, housed in a veritable citadel of brick and steel from whose topmost peaks he may look down upon the city of his birth.

A $60,000,000 home of his new constituency is planned by the former governor as president of the Empire State Office Building corporation, which will erect the largest office building in the world. It will rise within 18 months upon the site of the world famous Waldorf-Astoria hotel on Fifth-ave.

From one who sought escape from the maelstrom of public life after a long and distinguished career, the Democratic presidential candidate appears to have tackled the kind of a task in which he will find many problems with a familiar tinge.

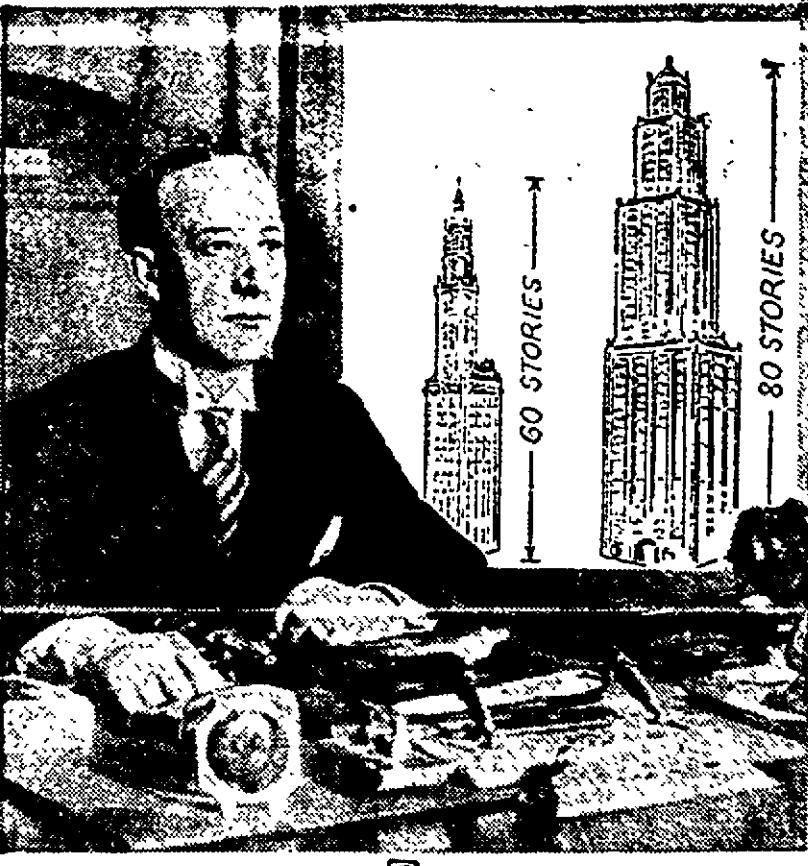

As governor the welfare of his constituency was uppermost in his mind. As an "Irish landlord" the success of the gigantic business undertaking will depend much upon the same considerate attention to the welfare of his people. Water and electric power, finances and taxes are problems from which he finds no escape in his new role.

Announcement of his new business plans signified that the time for play was over. At 56 he has rolled up his sleeves and entered upon a phase of activity in the business world.

Since his unsuccessful bid for the presidency, Mr. Smith has been leading a quiet life with his family in a comfortable suite in the Biltmore in New York after brief sojourns in famous vacation spots in the south and east. He has devoted his time to rest and writing, working in his autobiography "Up to Now."

Los Angeles — (AP) — Here in the "golden west" where his father started a career that brought him wealth and international fame as an engineer before he was 40. Herbert Hoover Jr. has buckled down to the job of building a radio network for aviation.

It is a network that will help safeguard passengers who make the aerial journey from coast to coast. Technical assistant to the president of Western Air Express, young Hoover is in charge of developing communications for that company.

The New York Central, the Chicago and Alton and the Santa Fe railroads are establishing an air-mail line in conjunction with the Western Air Express from New York to Los Angeles. The aviation company has been operating a 12-hour air passenger service between Kansas City and Los Angeles.

In addition to his radio work with the Western Air Express, the president's son has held an amateur radio license for some time. His station, with the call letters 6-XH, is located at Palo Alto, the Hoover family home. A few years ago, he was attached to the radio laboratory at the Bureau of Standards in Washington.

Recently he and Frederick Terman of Leland Stanford University were granted a license for an experimental short wave station. The station is to be employed for radio instruction at the university and for the study of the very high frequencies above 23,000 kilocycles.

Instinct Which Guides Speculators and Investors Is Identical

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press)

The instinct which directs investor and speculator alike to give the preference to the stock leader in the industry concerned is a sound one. All through the long advance in the stock market it has been the shares of the corporation which have occupied the foremost place in their respective trades that have risen.

There are many reasons for this discrimination. One of them is that information about operations and financial standing of such companies is available to a far greater extent than similar data for less well-known organizations. U. S. Steel, for instance, gives out at regular intervals the most complete of financial and operating reports. American Telephone and Telegraph and General Motors do likewise. Other illustrations will readily suggest themselves.

Another reason is that in the event of trade reaction the strongly entrenched leader is certain to suffer less and to recover sooner than its competitors. Take the case of oil, for example. The problem of over-production is a serious one and up to now has defied solution and yet every one knows that it will be solved eventually and when that time comes the Standard Oil Companies will have retained the position they now hold. Many of independents will come through successfully but there are always weak units which are more or less crippled.

Funding is more easily accomplished by the larger corporation and its activities are as a rule more diversified. The large corporation is able to enlist the services of the most able management.

All this being true it only remains to add that leadership is not fixed unchangeably. No matter how strong a corporation appears to be now commanding a position it occupies it can be challenged. If the security buyer can discover before the market

High School Grid Squad Lacks Veteran Material

SHIELDS SEEKING LINEMEN AS BACKS LOOK LIKE CLASS

No Football in Junior Highs Makes Soph Candidates Almost Worthless

FOR the past ten days Coach Joseph Shields has been working with his Appleton high school squad up on the Third world practice field, and with the first game but a little more than a week off, Shields still is wondering what he's going to put forth as a squad.

There are a flock of youngsters out for football but they won't help matters much this season. Some of the boys are fairly big but because Appleton junior high schools don't teach football it will take a season to teach the youngsters about the game.

Practically every other city in the valley conference has football in junior highs and helps to develop players for the high school team. Perhaps that is why East Green Bay, year after year, has good squads, why West Green Bay this season is expected to have a big team and why other squads annually have great strength.

Trying to keep a football squad going with men whom you can use only two years of their high school period isn't easy and if the Orange fizzles out this fall that is one reason for the flop.

Shields will have a squad of mighty good, fast moving half backs this fall and a rattling good quarterback in Norbert Berg, captain. But he still is seeking a good fullback because Holtermann doesn't seem to be rounding into shape as fast as he might and because Mortell seems to be a bit too light.

Among the half backs are Ray Crane, a husky little veteran with uncanny open field ability; Connie Frank who came up from St. Joseph Junior high school where he played football last season and therefore will be a big help to Shields; Krohn, another flashy little half and a couple other youngsters who probably will amount to something as soon as they get into scrimmages.

LINER'S BIG PROBLEM
The line presents the biggest problem to Coach Shields. Only four veterans from last season are among the seven men in the front line and the new men are far from the caliber of the veterans who graduated last fall.

End candidates at present are Steens, a rookie and Breitnick, the latter a veteran member of last season's squad but new on the flank position. Winter and Minschmidt, two of last season's men are at the tackle positions, the former a tall rambler, the latter the heaviest man on the squad.

Tubby Feetz again looks like a choice for one guard position but the other post is a toss up and someone must be found for it. Dobberstein has been worked in the position and Tilly will probably get a chance as soon as an injured shoulder is better. Both are new men, however.

Center is another source of worry for Shields. He has been giving Stark first chance but the youngster is pretty small and although imbued with all the nerve and fight a youth can have, Stark still finds a bit short of the man needed. Frogner, a tall chap from Stevens Point also is being given a shot at the pivot post.

But that's about all the Orange coach has. There are a flock of chaps who may work in well, among them Bill Foote, an end, Schmiege another end, and Zindars, still another wingman. If some of the new end candidates crash through it is possible that the first choice ends will be shifted to other positions.

Efforts also are being made to find a punter for the team. Holtermann and Emmett Mortell are doing most of the booting now with the latter having an edge in that his kicks are longer and are consistently good boots.

The Orange opens its grid season Sept. 28, with Sheboygan at Appleton.

BILLY BURKE BEATS WILD BILL MEHLHORN

Use No. 3 Iron to Chip Ball into Cup When Putt Is Impossible

Glens Falls, N. Y.—(P)—Using a No. 3 iron to chip in a putt on the ninth hole for a birdie two and a 37, Billy Burke of Westport, N. Y., shaded Bill Mehlhorn by a stroke in the play-off for the title in the Glens Falls invitation open golf tournament here yesterday. The final and winning putt was for 20 feet. The impact Burke's ball left as it struck the green prevented a putt of such distance, so the New York state open champion chose to gamble on the iron.

Burke's triumph, coming after he had required four putts on the eighth, climaxed the brilliant fight he had made through the last thirty-six holes to overtake John Golden, who finished third and Mehlhorn.

A stroke behind both after covering the first thirty-six in 144, Burke was two strokes to the rear of Golden after the next eighteen, which he covered in 71 as Golden got a 70. Mehlhorn took a 72 and fell back to even terms with Burke, leaving Golden, apparently headed for the title and the $500 prize. The final eighteen yesterday, however, saw Burke and Mehlhorn come home in 71 as Golden floundered at 74 and dropped from the race.

With Mehlhorn and Burke tied at 144, the officials ordered a nine-hole play-off.

BIG FOUR CAPTAINS

MARTIN - RIRON

ST. MITCHELL - LAWRENCE

Here are the Big Four football pilots who will lead their respective varsities in the 1929 schedule. Practice for their teams began Sept. 1.

A burly tackle from Portage is Walter Ambrose, captain of Armstrong's Carroll eleven. Ambrose succeeds Herb Blazier former Orange leader and consequently has a hard place to fill. Carroll's captain weighs over 200 pounds, and is facing his second year of varsity play.

Donald Martin, more often called "Red" will guide the Riron Redmen from quarterback position. Martin won his spurs as all-city signal position. Other Beloit veterans will also share the honors.

BIG TEN COACHES WORKING HARD FOR YEAR'S FIRST GAMES

Mentors Try Many Combinations as They Seek to Strengthen Squads

CHICAGO—(AP)—Five Big Ten football coaches have wasted no time in selecting tentative first string lineups. With the training season only three days old, Bob Zuppke of Illinois; Harry Kipke of Michigan; Dr. Clarence Spears, Minnesota; Bert Ingerson, Iowa, and Sam Williamson of Ohio state, already have started experimenting with possible combinations.

Kipke faces a big order, with two varsity games less than two weeks away, the Wolverines open Sept. 28 with games against Albion college and Mt. Union at Ann Arbor, leaving the new coach with the task of developing two teams and their reserves, by that time.

Iowa, Indiana and Wisconsin also will open their schedules Sept. 28, with the remaining six members of the conference going into formal action for the first time Oct. 5.

Zuppke continued to experiment with end candidates yesterday, even shifting Fritz Hulbert, star fullback last season, at the flanks.

Dr. Spears spent a big share of his time in looking over the field in search of a quarterback to replace Fred Hovde, trying Lekseks, Brockmeyer, Bardwell and Haas in the signal calling position.

New Haven, Conn.—Emery Caban, Sanford, Me., outpointed Louis "Kid" Kaplan, Meriden, Conn. (10).

MICKEY WALKER NO LONGER A CHAMPION

Welterweight King Loses
Crown Because of Inactivity in Class

Chicago—(AP)—The business of electing a president and selecting a city for the 1930 meeting today remained before the National Boxing association convention.

Paul Prehn, president of the association, has said he would not be a candidate for reelection, leaving Stanley Isaacs of Cincinnati, vice president, as his probable successor. Detroit was the leading city bidding for the 1930 convention.

The question of Mickey Walker and the world middleweight title was settled yesterday, as far as the N. B. A. is concerned, when the delegates approved a recommendation by the championship committee that the Rumson, N. J. bulldog be uncrowned, for inaction in his class, although he has engaged in several battles with light heavyweights.

However, the question of a $10,000 forfeit posted by Jack Kearns for Walker, when the latter met Tommy Loughran here early this year, still was in the air.

In declaring the middleweight throne vacant, the association named Hudkins, Rene Devos and Harry Ebbets as the leading contenders for the title.

Lightweight champion Sammy Mandell and Andre Routs, featherweight titleholder, were placed on the approved list by the delegates.

Approval of a meeting between Routs and Bat Battalino, at Hartford, Conn., on Sept. 25 as a title bout cleared the Frenchman.

Member states were instructed to bar from promotional or other activity in connection with boxing any individual with a serious police record.

New York—The name of one smoky city begins with a letter that is not P. Because of a pall of smoke over New York folks here receive only two-thirds as much sunlight as country dwellers, the National Conference Board of Sanitation has

class, although he has engaged in minimum. Pilots of airplanes are invariably young and it is much harder to train them to err on the side of caution, though this is by no means an insuperable obstacle,

and airplane people who have seen millions of dollars invested in the industry are not going to permit

avoidable accidents or mishaps.

KEEP CONFIDENCE

These companies which have established passenger lines have the aid of the railroads but not always their experience in training personnel.

But while there has been some gloom over the accidents, not a bit of confidence has been lost in the future of aviation by the leaders in the business and judging from the number of passengers carried on different lines of the country almost immediately after the recent tragedy

in the southwest, the feeling is that the public fully understands that airplane travel is by no means complete but that the ratio of accidents will in the long run be no greater than in other means of travel.

TO PROBE CAUSES OF PLANE WRECKS

The department of commerce through its new assistant secretary in charge of aviation, Clarence M. Young, is planning to make detailed reports on all accidents in the air so that the public may know just what are the dangers and so that the commercial companies will find a new stimulus in exercising caution.

The conspicuous accidents of recent weeks have indirectly brought about such a change of policy—from creativity to publicity—so that it may well be said the pioneers in aviation have not died in vain.

MADISON POLICE CARS MAY GET RADIO SETS

Madison—(AP)—This city may soon

follow the plan of metropolitan cities to install short wave radio sets in roving police cars. One of the country's foremost short-wave experiment stations here is aiding the department in its plans for the sets and has already conducted tests around its laboratories with one of the police cars.

On What Basis Do You Select Your Radio?

Musical Tone Should Be the Test!

A railroad folder, in describing the Grand Canyon of Arizona, said, "To adequately describe it, would bankrupt the English language." Phrase slinging in radio advertising and radio selling has nearly done this, so that we will not add to the confusion, but let our sets sing their own praise. The names in themselves are a safe guarantee of mechanical and musical perfection.

NEW LONDON
PERSONALSCHILTON GROUP
DISCUSSES NEED FOR NEW SCHOOL

Will Attempt to Get New Building Despite Defeat of Bond Issue

Special to Post-Crescent
Chilton—An adjourned school meeting was held at the high school Monday evening. The main matter under consideration at this meeting was the discussion of a site for the proposed new school. On Tuesday, Sept. 10, a special election was held for the purpose of authorizing a bond issue of $150,000 for the erection of a new school. The issue was defeated by 22 votes in a total of 801 casts cast. The main opposition to the bond issue was led by Atty. Leo P. Fox, for many years county superintendent of schools for Calumet-co.

At a previous meeting, held two weeks ago, it was voted to purchase a site of 12 acres on the south side, on the shore of the Manitowoc river. This site was purchased, as it was felt that it would provide adequate athletic fields and playgrounds.

At the meeting held on Monday evening many pleases were made for a new school building, as the present building is entirely inadequate for the needs of the community. It was pointed out that the enrollment in the high school now numbers 180, although there is seating capacity for only 125 students. The school board is obliged to rent a room to house the kindergarten; there is no laboratory for the teaching of sciences and the play grounds are entirely too small.

A. Iverson, athletic director of the Sheboygan high school, gave a talk on the needs of sufficient school grounds for athletic purposes and stressed the value to the child, of outdoor play and exercise. A committee of five was appointed to work in conjunction with the school board in getting the information necessary to successfully carry out a building program. The meeting then adjourned to Oct. 14.

DOBBERSTEIN HAS ATTRACTIVE FARM BUILDING GROUP

Structures Replace Those Destroyed by Fire Last Jan. 2

BY W. F. WINSEY
Hortonville—One of the most attractive and serviceable groups of new, modern farm buildings in Outagamie co is now on the farm of John Dobberstein, route 2, displacing as it may in a few short months the outbuildings destroyed by fire Jan. 4.

The largest and most conspicuous of this group of buildings is a hip roof barn 35 by 96 feet with a stable the full size underneath inclosed with walls of stone broken with a row of large windows, and doors. The second building is a machine shed on a concrete foundation, large enough to house all the machinery and tools on the farm. The third is a concrete block garage constructed to house a large, modern building, and several other buildings escaped the fire.

Construction work on the barn was started the first week in June, and the mows were ready for the first cutting of hay and the sheaves of grain. The barn is now equipped with the exception of installing a water tank and a manure carrier. To complete the barn in such record breaking time, six carpenters were on the job daily, and often groups of a dozen to 24 farmers from the neighborhood and as far away as the town of Mukwa, the former home of Mrs. Dobberstein. These farmers collected in bees to assist the Dobbersteins as far as possible in extricating themselves from their difficulty.

With the members of the family, Mrs. Dobberstein regularly prepared meals for eleven people three times a day and often for 18 to 25 during the construction period. Of the volunteer assistance that the Dobbersteins got from their neighbors, Mrs. Dobberstein said that before the fire she never appreciated the meaning of "neighbor" and never dreamed how ready neighbors are to drop their own work and rush to the assistance of other members of the group in trouble.

THRESHING FLOORS
The Dobberstein barn is provided with two large threshing floors a large granary, and mows large enough to store all the hay and grain raised on the farm. To keep it from freezing in the coldest weather, the tank which supplies water to the stables has a place in the granary which is covered with straw in winter.

On one side of the stable are steel stanchions for 24 cows, and across a wide driveway extending lengthwise of the stable are four horse stalls, a steel bull pen, a steel cow pen, a steel calf pen, a box stall and four stalls for horses. The floors, gutters, and mangers are made of concrete, and the feed alley, also of concrete, for convenience is raised above the mangers the full length. Hay chutes connect the threshing floors with the feed alley in the stable, and grain and ground feed chutes connect the granary where the ground feed for the cattle is mixed, with the feed bags in the feed alley of the stable. Individual drinking cups and salt cups supply water and salt to each animal in the stable. An electric lighting system has already been installed in the barn and stable. Motor ventilating tubes connect fresh air intakes in the stable with round steel ventilators on the peak of the roof. The need of warmth, sunlight and fresh air for farm animals has been recognized by the Dobbersteins in planning the new barn and each of these necessities have been amply provided.

At the south end of the barn a large, modern milk house and work shop has been constructed and will soon be equipped with all the modern

COUZENS SAYS GROUP VOTED ON MANGANESE

Washington—(P)—Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan said Tuesday in the senate that the finance committee—of which he is a member—had voted first 7 to 4 to retain the manganese ore tariff in the pending bill and later had voted 6 to 5 to put it on the free list.

This disclosure came after the Michigan senator had called attention to reports that President Hoover had suggested that manganese be placed on the free list, and advocated that the president or those responsible for the report should state their accuracy.

MICHIGAN COPPER USED BY ANCIENTS?

Ishpeming, Mich.—(P)—Ancient Egyptians may have used copper that came from the upper peninsula of Michigan, in the belief of James Fosher, professor at Michigan Tech, Houghton.

He expressed that opinion here yesterday, pointing to the fact that knowledge of copper mining in the upper peninsula goes back to prehistoric times, he linked this with the Egyptian development of metalworking.

Make Ripe Grape Jelly this Way:

You will never appreciate the difference in the taste and color of Grape Jelly until you try the Quixy way with fully ripened grapes. Make jelly when grapes are at their best—fully ripe—and it is so easy now when you use Quixy. Quixy is pure fruit pectin in powder form—it sets all fruit juices, and thickens jam quickly and surely. Better jelly and jam, too, as the flavor is not boiled away, and there is a big saving of sugar.

RIPE GRAPE JELLY

Steam and crush ripe grapes to be used, barely cover with water and boil for ten minutes. Strain and place 4 cups juice in deep preserving kettle. Add 1 package Quixy, stirring constantly, and bring to brisk boil. Now add 4 cups of sugar and bring to vigorous boil and continue until jelly fully sheets from spoon (see Jelly Test). Pour into glasses and paraffin when cool.

Every package of Quixy contains proven recipes for making jelly and jam from every fruit and berry. No chance for failure, and it is so easy.

Try Quixy and learn the short cut in time and economy in sugar, that means so much to the housewife—15¢ at your grocers.

Waterless cooking!

"Weary's" way keeps the water out. But the modern housewife knows that the secret of waterless cooking is to keep the natural foci-moisture in—so she uses her Mirro Vapo-Seal Cooker and saves the minerals and vitamins.

Let us show you the new supersize Mirro Cooker. Cooks a big dinner over one burner. The pot holds 12 quarts; large inset pan, 2 quarts; two small pans, 1 quart each. Non-burning Thermoplastic handles and knob; up-to-date clampless cover.

GRAIN SHOW TO BE HELD AT BEAVER DAM

Annual Event Will Be Held Nov. 13 to 15 With Many Interesting Features

opportunity to attend some of the short course programs which are in session, according to R. A. Moore, agronomist at the state university.

Since the dates for this year's grain show just precedes the International at Chicago, many of the best samples of grain exhibited will be shipped directly to the International exposition at Chicago. In this way the same exhibitors can compete in both shows, the authorities explain.

Special features for Smith-Hughes agricultural students will be held in connection with the exhibition. The high school judging contest is an annual feature which attracts teams from many schools. Schools of the county surrounding Beaver Dam are cooperating with the experiment association to have the program in Madison and outside locations every second year.

FORMER NEWSPAPER WAR WRITER WOULD BUY OLD FLAGSHIP

Dewey's Olympia, Retired from Service, May Be Saved

New York—Thirty-one years ago, Edward W. Harden, newspaper correspondent, stood on a blistering deck and watched the Olympia, flagship of Admiral Dewey's squadron, fire the first shot in the Battle of Manila Bay.

Today Harden, a successful financier, offers to purchase the old warship to save it the ignominy of the junk pile.

The Olympia, recently condemned by the Navy Department as obsolete, was threatened with dismantlement. Its last official mission was the "bring back to this country the body of America's Unknown Soldier."

Veterans' organizations protested the destruction of the celebrated vessel, but Harden personally proposed to buy it and move it to the Memorial Bridge in Washington. Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, is holding the offer in abeyance with the hope that the President and Congress will move to preserve the ship as a historic relic.

It would cost private interests $100,000 or more to purchase the hull, the amount representing its value as scrap iron.

"I have a sentimental attachment for the old ship and feel that it would be a pity to scrap a boat which is so intimately connected with episodes in American history," Harden said.

RECALLS HISTORIC EVENT

Harden, who cabled the first news of Dewey's victory to America, thus achieving the outstanding "news beat" of that day, vividly recalls the morning of May 1, 1898, when he and two other correspondents steamed into Manila Bay on the revenue cutter McCulloch after a dash from Hong Kong and watched Dewey pour his devastating fire on the Spanish fleet hiding behind Cavite.

The McCulloch roamed back and forth just outside of the firing line as the American squadron, led by the Olympia, raked the enemy with broadsides.

"We crept into the almost landlocked harbor at mid-night," Harden said, "and shortly after dawn Sunday morning sighted the enemy fleet behind the projecting point of land that is tipped by the village of Cavite.

"The battle was only of a few hours' duration but was furious while it lasted. By early afternoon the ships of the Spanish fleet either had been sunk or had hauled up their colors.

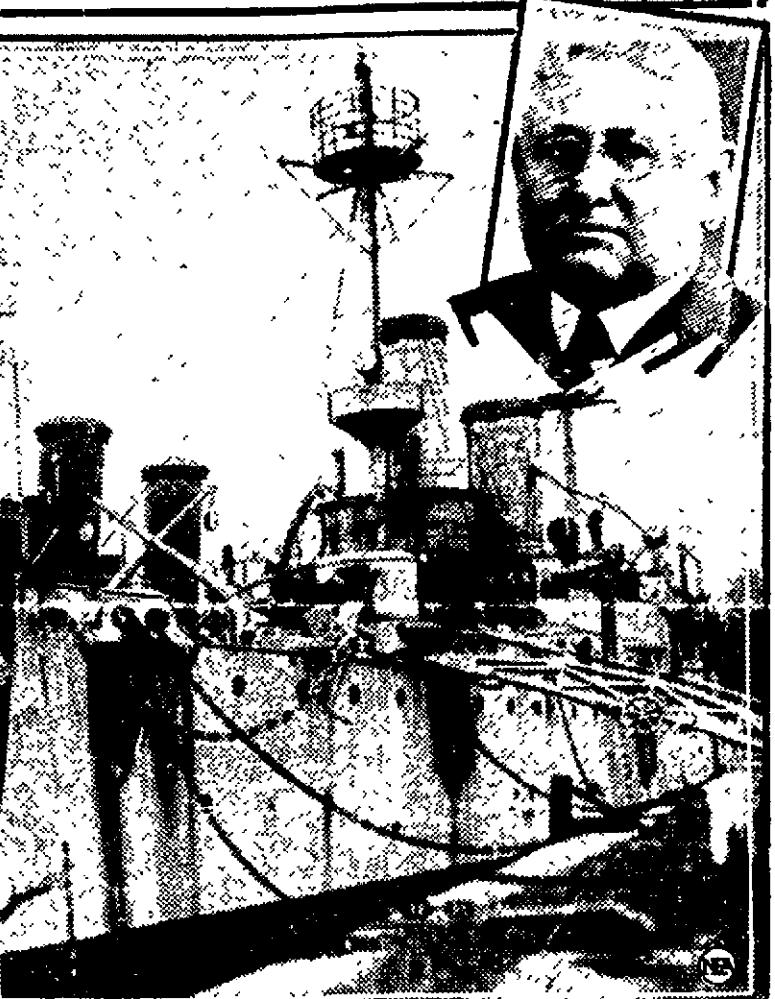

"Then we were up against the problem of getting news of the victory to America.

"I was present when Admiral Dewey had the Manila communication cable hauled up with grappling hooks and severed with cold chisels and it was Thursday before the cutter left for Hong Kong where we could send our stories to the outside world. Because of the victory back and forth, I was able to get a bulletin telling of the battle into New York about 4 o'clock Saturday morning, several hours before the official news was issued from Washington.

"We made no attempt to land following the victory, but waited for troops to arrive. On August 12, on the eve of the bombardment of Manila with a combined land attack, I spent the night aboard the flagship at the invitation of the admiral. On August 13 we entered and took over the city of Manila."

Harden's friendship with Admiral Dewey, begun at that time, lasted until Dewey's death. In 1906, Harden gave up his newspaper career and joined a financial concern. Wealthy now, he is a director in fourteen national and international organizations.

INFANT MORTALITY RATE IN APPLETON IS BELOW AVERAGE

Mark Here Is 55 Deaths
Under One Year per 1,000
Live Births

The average infant mortality rate in Appleton is far below the average in both the state and county, according to the annual statistical report on infant mortality in 729 American cities above 10,000 population, compiled by the American Child Health Association.

Appleton's rate is 55 deaths under one year per 1,000 live births. Waukesha and West Allis have the lowest rates among Badger cities with 36 each.

The average urban rate for all Wisconsin cities was 64, while the average for the 729 cities was 68.3. Third place for low infant mortality was credited to Marinette, with a rate of 39. Sheboygan was fourth with a rate of 47.

The Wisconsin rate follows: Appleton 55; Ashland 86; Beloit 54; Euclid 64; Fond du Lac 63; Green Bay 73; Janesville 68; Kenosha 61; La Crosse 58; Madison 53; Manitowoc 68; Milwaukee 71; Oshkosh 53; Racine 53; Stevens Point 79; Superior 63; Wausau 52.

These rates are termed "crude rates," being based on the deaths and births reported as occurring in a given place even though the residence was elsewhere. The state board explained that some cities showing low infant death rates lack hospitals and institutional homes for babies and utilize institutions in neighboring cities. Frequently this accounts for relatively low death rates in some of the smaller cities and higher rates for cities possessing such institutions.

Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia, pictured here, isn't going to the junk yard if Edward W. Harden, upper right, can help it. Thirty-one years ago he watched the fighting in the battle of Manila Bay. Now, a wealthy financier of New York, he has offered to buy the old craft as a national memorial.

SCHOOL MARRIAGE BAN OVERRULED BY COURT

Jackson, Miss.—(AP)—Marriage is a legal and elevating relationship with which educators in Mississippi must not tamper, according to a supreme court ruling.

The decision was made by Justice W. H. Anderson in the case of Wanda Dodge Myers, 16, against the Moss Point school of this city.

Mrs. Myers was denied entrance to the school to pursue her studies on the grounds that "presence of a married student would be detrimental to the good government and usefulness of the schools, and relations of married persons with other children would make known views of life which should not be known to unmarried persons."

"We fail to appreciate the force of the arguments," said the justice's opinion.

Many Purchases of This Kind

New York — Vogue for the smoother and short-haired furs is forecast with decided emphasis by the purchases which American voyagers have made in the English fur shops. None treats the shorter haired furs better than the British furriers and the volume of mink and probably be influenced to demand

similar furs from American furriers.
The trend has been aided by the

than retail scales.

$25 OFFER LEADS WOMAN TO CLAIM DEAD BOY AS SON

Chicago — (AP)—For $25, which she never received, Mrs. Jennie Colburn wept over the grave of a 17-year-old boy she said was her son but who, she admitted today, was not.

The lad, run down by a locomotive, wore a Boy Scout button and boy scouts interested themselves in establishing his identity. No one claimed the body for nearly a month. Mrs. Colburn appeared at the morgue shortly after the funeral and said the body was that of her son who disappeared six months before.

She told police she had been prompted by her husband to make the identification, so they might get a $25 reward offered by a newspaper. She said she never got the money. She was held for a coroner's investigation today.

does not matter sartorially. No mat-

From Dormitory to Storehouse

A dormitory for Lawrence college coeds for 16 years, Smith House, above, located on the banks of the Fox river, is to be converted into a storehouse. And thus the "House of Mystery," subject of many ghostly tales, steps out of the important role it has played in the lives of so many Lawrence students for a long time. The building was remodeled and built up by Augustus Ledyard Smith, prominent in Appleton history in 1863. The property was purchased by Lawrence college in 1913.

New Fall DRAPERIES In Warmer Tones

It is always a wise plan at the end of summer to replace light-tones, sometimes faded, draperies with fresh new hangings more in keeping with the new fall season. Indeed, it is practically impossible for a room to look anything but up to date when its windows have been made to look smart and attractive with fresh new draperies. Try this rejuvenating scheme in all your rooms; it always works.

Army Women Jubilant To Receive New Furniture

Washington — (AP)—Six hundred United States army officers' wives will be gratified with fine new sets of furniture soon, the first Uncle Sam has given them in any quantity since 1909.

From Nome to the Philippines
there is rejoicing at last the antiquated hall trees and hard settees which the government furnished can be discarded. In their place will be handsome mahogany furniture.

Despite the gay and interesting existence they lead, army officers' wives have had to put up with mediocre furniture which would cause the noses of many of their friends in muftis to turn up in scorn.

The first of the furniture purchased with the congressional appropriation of $326,000 has been received by the quartermaster general. Soon the new homes built for officers in various posts all over the country will be equipped with them.

The furniture is of African mahogany of Sheraton type especially designed to meet the particular needs of army men and their families. It will remain a permanent part of each house instead of being moved from place to place as heretofore. By eliminating the expense of packing and crating the government expects to save enough to cover the cost of the new furniture.

Homes of officers stationed in the tropics will probably be similarly equipped. For the first time in the history of the army the quarters of warrant officers and non-commissioned officers are to be furnished. The furniture will be of birch with a mahogany finish.

For years only a limited amount of furniture, including the unsightly hall trees, hard settees and old-fashioned book cases, has been provided officers by the government. Individual families supplemented the meager
furniture showing with pieces of their own.

The government paid for packing and crating when an officer was transferred.

RECENT RAINS HELPED CROPS IN WISCONSIN

Madison — (AP)—Light rainfalls of August which made Wisconsin prospects dim have been counteracted by favorable rains the first half of this month and prospects for a late crop improvement is apparent, according to the crop reporting statement of the Federal and state departments issued today.

An unusually large crop of hay
has been harvested, the service reports, adding that "the state probably has the finest hay supply in its history, which will go a long way to offset the reduced production of the more important feed grains—corn,
oats and barley."

The oat crop has fallen appreciably, the report states, giving an $8-million-bushel estimate for 1928 as compared to 108 million a year ago.

Barley production was strong, the market service says, with an increase in Wisconsin, although the national output has fallen.

A smaller potato production estimate has been set by the reporting service. The 1929 forecast is 23,142.

000 bushels as compared with 31, 970,000 bushels last year.

Cabbage is reported 80 per cent normal, onions are making low yields, canning crops are expected to be smaller, and the 120,000-barrel estimate for apples is 20,000 less than in 1928.

NEW YORK PEOPLE SLOW TO GIVE UP CONTACT WITH SUN

Urban Dwellers Appear to Be Sold on Value of Ultra-violet Rays

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Pres. New York) — According to almost immemorial custom, any well behaved New Yorker ought to shy his star skimmer into the ash can just one week ahead of the autumnal equinox. This year, the momentous date has come and gone and thousands of straw hats are still flaunted brazenly in the streets, although there is the chill of early fall in the air.

Students of such phases of urban regeneration attribute the rebellion to the sun-craze—nothing less. Bronzed hordes, returning from the mountains and beaches, are full of ultra-violet rays, bounding with elastic step and, under their sun-baked integuments, more resistant to suggestion and less easily regimented. In one sense, their summer of exposure to the sun has left them hard-boiled. Another detail, disquieting to the hat trade, is the fact that many of them wear no hats at all.

The returning sun worshippers have been quick to pick up the demand of the London branch of their international fellowship for the privilege of sun bathing in the parks. Commissioner Lansbury, of the London department of works has just made an announcement which indicates that hereafter bathing suits, even the low-backed ones, will be quite de rigueur in the London parks.

The sun devotees here already vision Central Park as one vast solarium. They are writing letters to the newspapers and talking about holding meetings and petitioning the mayor.

SEE DOUBLE CONTRIBUTION
Herman C. Leitz, of the Bronx, who used to be the head of a German turnverein, and who has been an intimate and confidential spokesman for the sun for years, sees in park-sun bathing not only a great municipal cure-all, but a magnificent contribution to the visual arts.

"There could be splendid groups reposing great historical sculpture," said Mr. Leitz. "Central Park could be made to look like the gardens of Versailles. Great physical culture classes could be organized, with thousands of people in them, and artistic posturing would naturally be included. At the same time the warm, life-giving, health sun would be pouring its rays into their bodies."

One can quote no further from Mr. Leitz without inviting a damage suit from the cloak and suit trade. It is sufficient to observe that he is one of multitudes who have taken a lesson from Henri Fabre's spade.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"What's a fraternity, Oscar? He says it will cost more money."

who kept her back humped up toward the sun as if she were on a sun-time turntable.

A New York company making an advertised lotion which prevents or cures sunburn was asked today how its sales compared with those of previous years. The reply was that they sold nearly three times the usual summer output. The explanation of this might be, of course, that the drought had driven more vacationists to the seashore than usual, but the manufacturers ascribe the sale to the country-wide sun craze.

Unquestionably, the new enthusiasm will be carried into the winter with an increased demand for artificial sunlight, supplied by the various kinds of sun lamps. The American Medical association through its council of physical therapy, has stated a general approval of sun treatments, but sounded a warning against immoderately and unscientific procedure, both in exposure to the sun and the use of lamps.

In Germany, the sun craze, led by Hans Suren, started in Berlin. With London and New York following,

GENERAL MOTORS MAY FURNISH CARS WITH RADIO SETS

Takes Over Factory, Patent Holdings of One Company; Dickens With Another

BY ROBERT MACK

Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Pres. Washington (AP)—The General Motors corporation, leader in the automobile industry, has invaded the field of radio manufacturing primarily for the purpose of equipping certain of its automobile lines with radio receiving sets.

General Motors already has purchased the Dayton Radio Manufacturing company, taking over its factory and patent holdings. It now is negotiating with the Radio Corporation of America for a licensing arrangement under which RCA patents would be employed in the manufacture of receiving sets. Whether General Motors plans to market receiving sets for the home in competition with the existing industry is not disclosed.

The idea of installing receivers in automobiles is not new. Several manufacturers, in special custom model motor cars, have equipped them with receiving sets. The sets are operated from the dashboard of the car.

The white house automobiles are equipped with receiving sets. When President Hoover goes picnicking, he carries his radio along with him as a regular part of the automobile equipment.

Visions 416 Miles Hour

For William's Plane

Philadelphia (AP)—Lieutenant Al Williams, navy speed king, flying at the rate of 416 miles an hour; other airplanes being navigated through space without a pilot aboard through the medium of remote radio control. These were glimpses into the future given by members of the Aero club of Pennsylvania and the Rotary club by speakers at a joint meeting here last night. Several hundred attended.

It was G. F. Toews, chief engineer of the Aeronautical laboratories at the navy yard, who in a technical address gave the speed possibilities of Lieutenant Williams' plane, the Mercury racer and supplied figures in support of his prediction. The Mercury racer failed to get off the water during tests for the Schneider cup races and accordingly was not taken to England for the races. It is being rebuilt at the navy yard and a more powerful motor installed.

"Williams' plane undoubtedly would have broken the world's speed record if it had got into the air," Toews said. "The engine is all right. The trouble lies in designing a light-speed propeller which will lift the plane off the water. Some changes in the body lines may be necessary also."

A speed of 416 miles an hour is the maximum which could be delivered by any known present day engine, he said, although England may have a engine "up her sleeve" larger than yet constructed.

Edward P. Howard, chief of the air regulations division of the U. S. department of commerce, disclosed that an application has recently been made for the licensing of a pilotless plane to be navigated by radio impulses.

In such a plane, he said, "the man at the radio sending station would have to be a licensed pilot."

MAJOR ROLPH MIGHT GIVE MAYOR WALKER SOME GOOD POINTERS

lead of California City Government Is Now Serving Fifth Term

BY BEN G. KLINE
Copyright: 1929, By Cons. Press
San Francisco—If Mayor James J. Rolph is re-elected head of the government of New York city after nomination Tuesday perhaps he will get some pointers from his lead, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, who is speeding across the country on a three-weeks business trip to Washington and New York.

The two famous and sartorially known "Jimmies" are expected to meet, and during their conversation the mayor of San Francisco can tell the mayor of New York that the first, three or four times are the hardest in the matter of winning a primary election. "Sunny Jim" is on his fifth term, which if finished, will round out twenty years of service. He is in a position to reveal to the younger metropolitan executive that the secret is getting the voters into habit.

The qualification "If finished" is meant to indicate anything dire is afoot ahead for San Francisco's mayor, but the rumors are that he may be a candidate for Governor this fall. He is known to have had ambitions touching the state capital for some time, and it is believed now that he will declare himself a candidate if republican factions in Southern California fail to nominate an aspirant from that section. Southern leaders line up solidly behind one man, it is understood that Rolph will not run.

Several civic matters impelled the mayor to make the present trip. He expected to discuss the proposed Francisco Bay bridge with resident Hoover and urge an early mailing of a commission to work out long standing disagreement between this city and the Navy department.

VIEW BOND MARKET

While in the east he will also look to the national bond market, the pressed tone of which threatens a delay disposal of San Francisco bonds for completing of the huge Hatchet water project, and will also interview Ogden L. Mills in regard to this city's airport.

Mills Field is held under a six year lease, and more than $300,000 has been spent in developing it. The field has been led to believe that there existed a "Gentlemen's Agreement" with the Mills Estate which amounted to an option for its purchase. But as city officials were considering a bond issue for further improvements this belief was shattered by a letter from Ogden L. Mills stating that the site was not for sale and was unsuitable for a permanent airport. Unless Mayor Rolph can straighten the matter out the city therefore faces the possibility of beginning all over again in selecting a site for and developing a municipal landing field.

It has not been announced that Mayor Rolph is going to investigate a height of the capitol at Washington, but if residents of the Capital city find him with surveying instruments making such calculation they should not be surprised. A voracious paragraph in the Mayor's speeches welcoming distinguished visitors to San Francisco oratorically declares that "Our city hall is higher than that of the Capital of Washington." A traitorous supervisor recently contradicted this and noted figures "to substantiate" his statement. This has the electorate confused, and "Sunny" Jim will win a great moral victory if he could return with facts and figures to prove his oft-repeated declaration was no idle boast.

A BIGGER THRILL

"I came tonight especially to find if you cared enough to marry me."

"Is that all? I thought you were going to take me to the movies," said Show.

LITTLE JOE

Boston Boasted Of Beau Brummels In Days Gone By

BY ALEXANDER GEORGE

In the days when a blush had no drug store affiliations and the coquette who made "goo-goo" eyes was considered very darling, Boston boasted not only of its Back Bay aristocracy and baked beans but of its beau brummels who had "winning ways with the ladies."

On a pleasant Indian summer afternoon 40 years ago, one very fine specimen of Beantown sartorial splendor invaded Brooklyn, drawn there by the reputed beauty of its young women.

"Displaying his manly form to the best advantage, he struck an attitude at the Sand street entrance to the bridge about the time the ladies were returning home from shopping in New York," a metropolitan paper of that day reported.

The Boston dude sported Cupid's bow mustache, gold and library eyeglasses and a geranium boutonniere. An immense St. Bernard dog stood beside him. The dude wore a fixed smile, the dog's expression becoming more and more dejected. Sergeant Phillips of the bridge police had to stand at that point nearly all day as a matter of business and he has never discovered anything so smile-provoking in the occupation.

"He noticed the Bostonian's expression of happiness and set him down as an idiot. Soon afterward two ladies, almost breathless with indignation, rushed up to the sergeant and told him that the tall man with the big dog had insulted them.

"You will have to do your mashing somewhere else," said the sergeant to the dude, with asperity. The stained glass attitude of the beautiful Bostonian changed to a hams-dog demeanor as he followed the officer, to the Fulton street station. There in a cell about two sizes too small for him he and the dog passed the night.

"Is it the custom of the men in Boston to insult ladies?" the judge asked the next morning as he fined him $5.

"I did not insult any ladies. I merely looked at them," was the reply.

Horace Greeley's staid old Tribune chronicles another episode in metropolitan romancing of the period which had a happier ending: Charles Stanton, 20, and Teenie Mardel, 17, were arraigned before Justice Welde in Harlem court on a charge of kissing each other in broad daylight at Eighty-seventh street and Avenue B.

"Police Thomas Egan, who made the arrest, had his attention called to the osculatory enjoyment of the young couple by two old ladies who expressed themselves horrified at the sight," the Tribune said.

"Stanton pleaded that the girl and he were old acquaintances and that they meant no harm. The girl acknowledged the kissing and did not seem at all abashed. As the code prescribes no punishment for the offense the prisoners were discharged."

That was the year Little Koenig, the "girl in green," won the ladies' race and a pair of shoes that didn't

TWENTY-TWO IN COUNTY CAN'T HUNT THIS YEAR

Twenty-two Outagamie-co men and five from Neenah and Menasha may not secure hunting licenses this year. The list is on file in the office of John E. Haunsel, county clerk.

The men were found guilty of conservation law violations last year and are prohibited from hunting for 12 months after the offense.

One of the questions asked each applicant for a hunting license is whether he was held for conservation law violations during the past year.

"GOVERNOR'S DAY" AT UPPER PENINSULA FAIR

Escanaba, Mich.—(P)—Today was "governor's day" at the Upper Peninsula State fair, and Gov. Fred W. Green occupied the spotlight.

The executive, with Mrs. Green and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chapman of Irons, made the trip from the lower peninsula by motor, arriving here last night.

Governor Green was scheduled to make a short speech; to present the trophy in a "governor's cup" race, and to attend a reception and banquet by Escanaba citizens.

Attendance yesterday was cut down to about 6,000 because of inclement weather, attentive to this, the fair board has decided that the exposition next year will be held earlier in the season.

BUSINESS STILL GOOD, CLEVELAND REPORTS

Cleveland—Business continues to move along at a high level in this district, with indications favorable for the fourth quarter producing a new high record in lines that naturally are running high at that season.

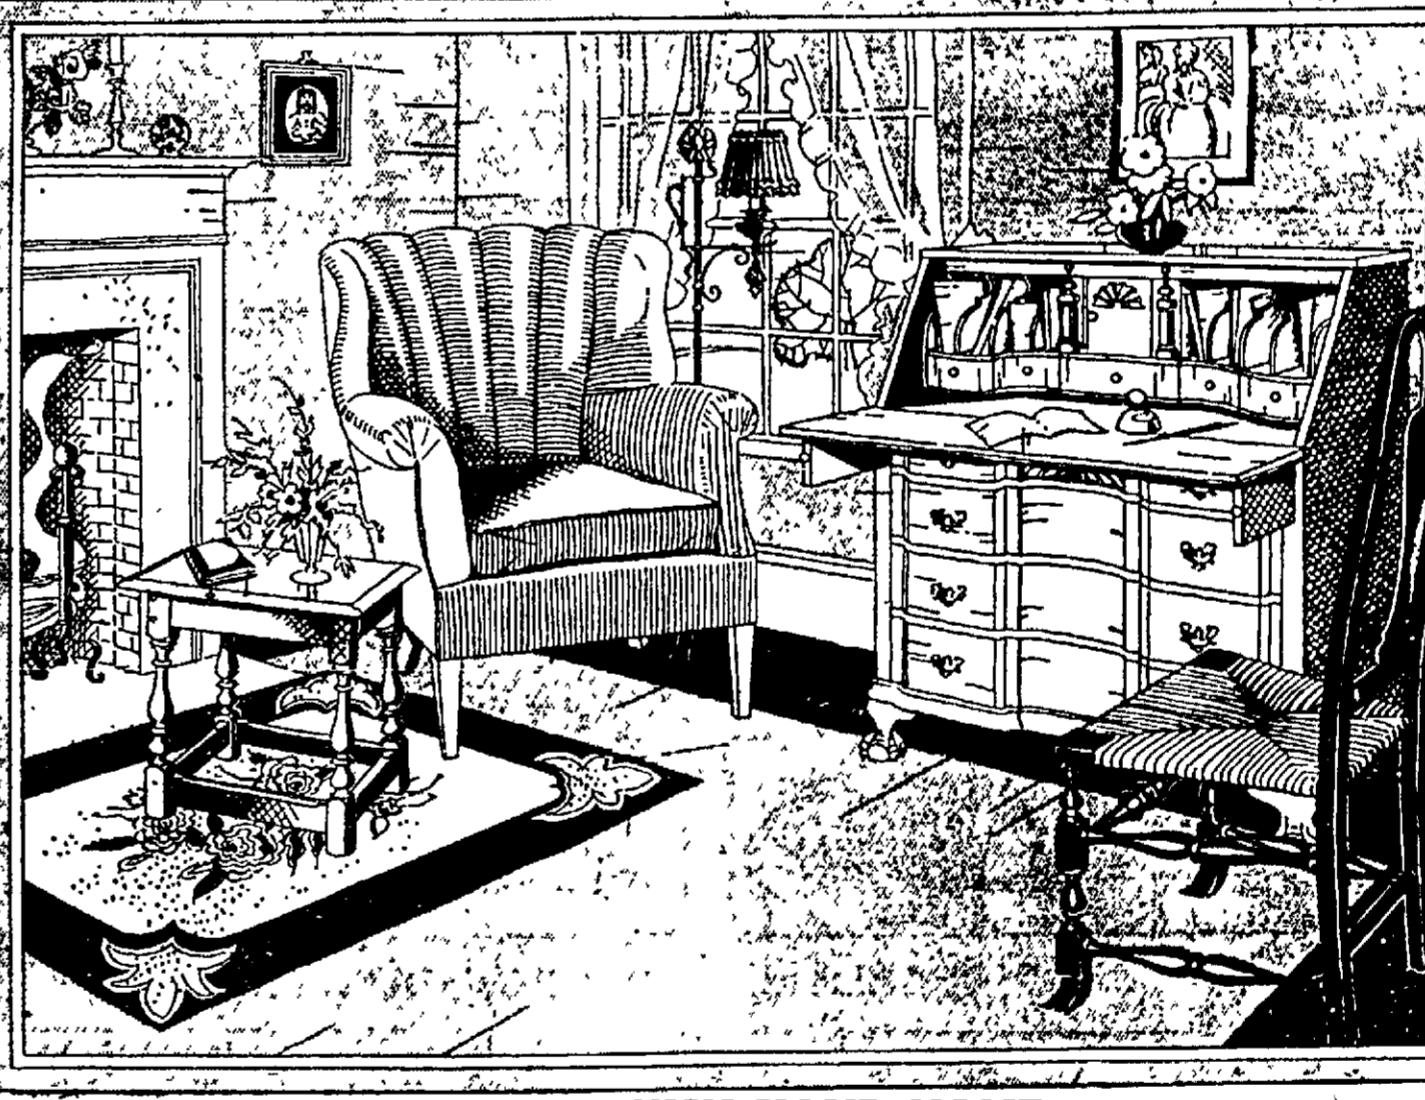

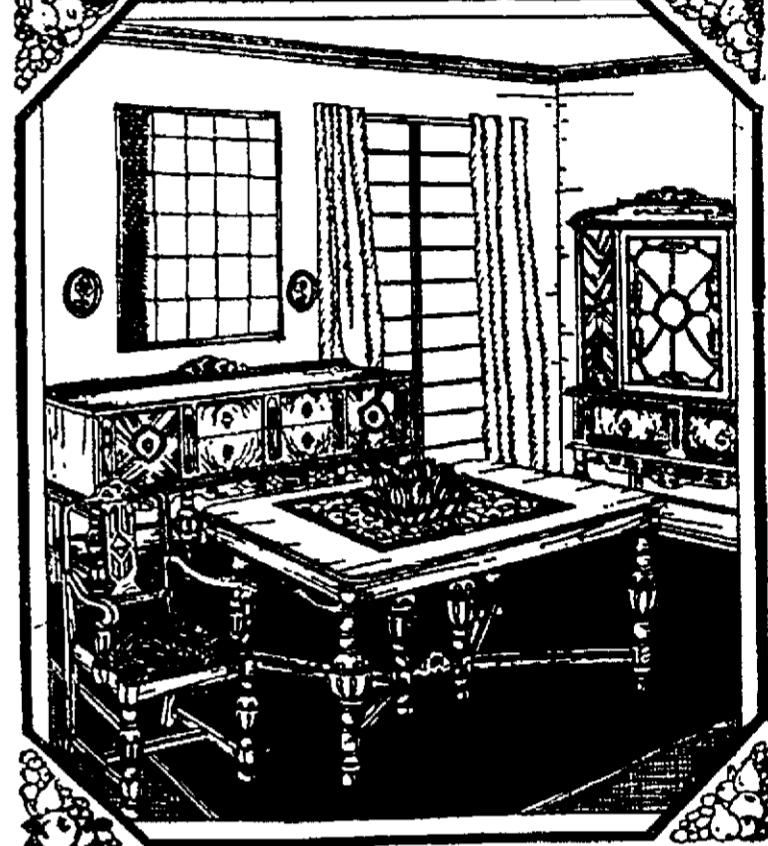

Cleveland merchants are particularly sanguine concerning a big Christmas trade. The unemployment situation in Cleveland is said to be better than that of any other large city in the country, while business is progressing nicely.

CHAPTER 41 ANOTHER RESCUE

BEFORE the dismal inn sat the landlord, his helper Sam and a rough man whose garments smacked of ships and the sea, all drinking ale.

"Fifteen golden guineas, Sam."

"Lord, Master Tucker, a load of money be it be!"

"And a roight, proper gen'leman
he be—eh?"

"For sure, Sam, ain't he a lord and a Vi-count?"

"Eh, he seemed in mighty urry."

"And no wonder, wi' such a 'and-some greetur waitin': I never seen a finer young woman."

"Though turble fiery, Master Tucker—"

"Well, being a man o' sperrit, I likes 'em fiery. 'Wat o' eyes! 'Wat o' shape — vot a—..."

"Same to them a faint rhythmic sound... growing ever louder... in now thundering in th' road toward the inn."

"The Vi-count at last!" shouted the landlord.

"Ay!" cried Sam, pointing.

"Ay, but," quoth the landlord.

"It's comin' the wrong d'rection."

"Well, 'tis no wonder," cried Sam: "you be not the Vi-count!"

"Why; you be not the Vi-count!"

"Why then, oo is 'e, Sam? Wheer's he a-comin' to—"

Now as they watched this rapidly approaching horseman, he swerved from the road and, without checking his wild career, came galloping straight at them.

"In—in w' ye," cried the landlord. All three tumbled into the taproom, bell-mell, but when they would have shut the door — there uprearing was a foam-flecked horse with mighty hoofs lashing above the very threshold.

Then this rider was out of the saddle
and next moment the little dingy taproom rang with the sounds of furious combat, a wild uproar that suddenly subsiding, gave place to silence broken only by a voice that groaned and a voice that gasped.

"If only them white-livered dogs adn't run and left me!" wailed the gasping voice.

"Where... is... she?" demanded
the gasping voice.

"Alof, mate. And if only them
lubberly dogs."

"Look... at this!" panted Sir Richard, showing a small, silver-mounted pistol. "Lie where... you are."

"Lord love ye, mate I don't want to move. I'm a lamb! But if them
lily-livered dogs—"

But Sir Richard was off, stumbling up the dark and narrow stair.

"Helen!" he called, and was answered by a cry wildly glad and caged.

"Richard... Oh, Richard, pray on, pray come to me... they've locked me in... Oh, Richard!"

He backed away and hurled himself against the door, yet thrice thus he battered the stout oak ere it swung wide... And then — almost before he knew it, she was in his arms, laughing and sobbing, shivering and clinging to him in a very passion of thankfulness.

"Hold me, Richard!" wailed she in smal, pleading voice. "Hold me fast fast—oh, Richard!"

"Come... shall we go?"

"To the Moat House."

"No, no, 'twere madness!" And here her hands stole up to creep and clasp themselves about his neck.
"You would be seen and — if they took thee again?"

"Twill nothing matter. For tonight, Helen, if all goes well—"

A hoarse voice belloved loudly
from the road.

"Oh, God pity me!" gasped Helen.
"They are back... the Viscount."

"Eh—Brookhurst? Come, let us go look!"

INCOME TAX BILL VETOED BY GOVERNOR

Kohler's Action Backed by Report from Tax Commission

MADISON — Gov. Walter J. Kohler today vetoed the La Follette faction Hitt income tax bill, viewing it as another attempt to change state tax laws without first devoting scientific study to the question.

Gov. Kohler pointed out that through the retroactive feature in partly-taxing incomes of 1927 and 1928, most citizens would have paid a larger tax under the bill during the next two years in spite of the larger individual allowances.

BACKED BY COMMISSION

The veto was backed by a report of the tax commission which declares a number of the bill's provisions are not clear and difficult of administration.

"The bill flagrantly violates the cardinal principle that a tax law should be certain, clear and plain to the tax payers," Gov. Kohler said. "It already has been the subject of almost as many different interpretations as there have been expert examinations of it."

He expressed the desire to find new sources of raising revenue rather than boost taxes already existing.

"I am particularly insistent that there be no increases in the tax burden on individuals and businesses already heavily taxed until we are sure there remain no new unexplored sources of taxation," he declared.

ASKS NEW REVENUE SOURCES

"I believe that a careful survey will disclose fields of taxation virtually untouched and that if additional revenue is needed it can be raised by taxing these sources rather than by increasing taxes on those already burdened."

As an example of finding new sources of revenue, the governor points to the law of this session, which places all utilities under the income tax.

"This legislature availed itself of such an opportunity when it subjected public utilities to the income tax, bringing hundreds of thousands of dollars into the treasury," Gov. Kohler said.

"I believe in protecting the man of small means, but am opposed to the unnecessary and arbitrary increase of taxation on industry and individuals."

INDUSTRIES ON EDGE

"I am especially opposed to the baleful practice of careless and unscientific tinkering with income tax and surtax laws by bills which, even if not enacted into law, keep our industries and individuals apprehensively on edge as to what may happen."

"This has been, in my opinion, the most potent influence in deterring large industries from locating in Wisconsin, a state otherwise admirably adapted and situated for industrial development."

"An income-tax bill should be most carefully and scientifically prepared so that when enacted into law it will best serve its purpose and remain in effect for a long time, stabilizing business and fostering general prosperity."

TWO ZIMMERMAN LAWS LEFT

The veto of the Hitt bill leaves the much discussed Zimmerman tax law unchanged, although every faction and virtually every candidate for

CEDAR RAPIDS MAN PRAISES NEW KONJOLA

Another Glorious Victory Over Complication of Ailments Scored by This Famous Medicine

MR. ERNEST JOHNSON
"My stomach was the source of much trouble," said Mr. Ernest Johnson, of the T. M. Sinclair Fire department, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Gas formed and seemed to press against my heart, causing palpitation. I was also constipated, and as a victim of severe headaches, it seemed to run down the back of my neck and my spine. I also ad kidney trouble.

"I have used four bottles of Konjola and my health troubles are gone. have a much better appetite, my food digests, and the distress that used to come from my stomach has disappeared. My bowels are regular, and the headaches are gone. Neuralgic pains have been driven from my body. This relief alone is worth many times the price of the medicine. Nervousness has been greatly relieved and I can rest well at night."

Konjola is sold in Appleton at Schluinz Bros. drug store, and by the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

TIES HIMSELF TO EXPLAIN DAMAGE DONE AT FACTORY

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — Norman Lemay broke into the news with his thrilling production of "Bound and Gagged." He likewise breaks into the news with his even more thrilling production of "Bound and Gagged—by Norman Lemay."

Norman's pitiful means led to his discovery, trussed with heavy rope, on a table, in the office of the West Roofing company, Milwaukee, where he was employed.

A sinister Mexican did the deed, he said, displaying wounds. The stranger, he added, had given vent to his anger at not finding any loot by breaking an emery wheel.

Detectives were entranced by his story, but they were curious to know how he could have yelled for two hours without the people next door knowing anything about it.

Norman confessed finally that the elaborate recital was only an alibi, connected because he had broken the wheel himself. He had tied himself.

HEALTH BOARD OFFICES MOVED BACK TO CAPITOL

MADISON — (AP) — The state board of health divisions that were forced out of the Capitol by the coming of the legislature last January, and have been working since in rented offices near the state house have been moved back to the committee rooms and other offices the legislators had to use and other departments that were so replaced will be brought back as soon as possible, Fred Dugdale, housing and building superintendent under the state engineer said.

state office was pledged to a tax reduction in the last campaign.

The veto leaves two of former Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman's major innovations in effect—his income tax law and the conservation law, which rode through the session without opposition.

TOCKS SHOOT UP AS CREDIT EASES UP ON WALL STREET

Commercial Solvent Jumps 51 Points to Reach New High Record of 601

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL, Associated Press, Financial Editor

New York.—(P)—Nervous trading characterized today's stock market but indications of easing out conditions strengthened bullish confidence, and the market headed upward in brisk fashion in the early afternoon. Many of the early declines 1 to 3 points were cut down, or put out, and a long list of issues were marked up 1 to 6 points, with a few high priced specialties whirled 7 to nearly 15 points. Commercial inventories soared 51½ points to a new high record at 601.

Call money renewed at 9 per cent, against a renewal rate of 7½ and closing rate of 10 yesterday, with indications that the rate would be attained all day. Money brokers started an easier undertone in the market, and expect the rate to work.

While the bulk of the day's activity is on the side of rising prices, the market was highly selective in character. American Telephone, which was under pressure last week, led 12½ to a new high at 303½. It compares with the year's low 193½ on buying influenced by extensions of materially expanding things through royalties and sales sound picture devices. U. S. Industrial Alcohol was again heavily up, soaring about 12 points to a new high record. Foster Wheeler common and preferred advanced 6 and 14½ points, respectively, to new top prices for the year. Allied Chemical, Auburn Auto, Western Union, Pacific Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse, Electric and Columbian Carbon all sold 5 to 8 points higher, while among the rest of 3 to 4 points gains were International Telephone, Unions, U. S. Steel, American and Illinois Power, Union Tank Car and Motors experienced a sinking spell midday. General Motors sank 7½ to 73, one block of 8,100 shares. Chrysler dropped 2 points. J. Case dropped 10 points.

New York.—(P)—American Telephone Convertible 4½s ran away the rest of the bond market to rising more than 3½ points on turnover which in the first two days of trading exceeded $2,200,000 value. The debentures, which can be exchanged for stock after Jan. 1 at $180 a share, made their advance on the buoyancy of shares, and were near their high. Those behind the American Com. security came the International Telephone 4½s, another stock bond, which hopped up about 10% in the earlier trading. Deals were 10% scale, but good buying appeared at the higher levels.

Side from the two communication structures, the market was the usual affair. Public Service of New York convertible 4½s made another high on the transfer of a hand of bonds and Reading Coal & Steel advanced nearly 3 points on accumulation. Dodge Brothers' 6s sold off nearly a point, though a report said they might be at 110.

Atures in the remainder of the which as a whole was irregular, led a further slump in North American Cement 6½s to the new of 50 and a loss of more than 2% in Lehigh Valley coal 5s. Rail gages were fixed.

BUYERS TRYING TO FORCE DOWN PRICES

Market Flooded With Receipts on Heels of Yesterday's Advance

Chicago.—(P)—Official estimated livestock receipts for tomorrow: cattle, 8,000; hogs, 20,000; sheep 26,000.

Chicago.—(P)—Buyers of cattle regard the short lived advance in beef steer prices of the previous day as a matter of history, and having leveled prices to the position they occupied before the sharp advance, now have started to work on bringing about still further concessions. Receipts of $3,000 for the first half of the week show an increase of 10,000 over the previous week. This was a natural result of the sharp upturn of the previous week. Fresh receipts of 15,000 offered here today included 600 head billed direct to packers and a good sprinkling of range cattle. Choice beefes and yearlings were steady but other grades were shown.

Hog receipts of 17,000 carried 2,900 consigned direct to local killing plants and there were 4,000 stale hogs carried from Tuesday's market.

Broad demand from all quarters gave the market a strong to 10 higher start on butchers and lights while packing hogs moved up 10 to 15 on initial transactions. An early top of $10.90 was paid but higher figures were asked.

Sheep trade, though inactive at the start gave indications of developing a strong market. Offerings of 22,000 included only 300 lambs directed to packers, and fat lambs, especially finished natives, were eagerly sought.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

Chicago.—(P)—(USDA)—Hogs: receipts 17,000; including 4,000 direct; market 15 to 25 higher; active at advance; top 11.10; bulk good to choice 10 to 25 lbs. 10.65@11.00; 200 to 300 lbs. 10.40@10.75; packing sows 9.25@9.35. Butchers, medium to choice 250 to 300 lbs. 9.75@10.85; 200 to 250 lbs. 10.25@11.10; 180 to 200 lbs. 10.00@11.10; 130 to 160 lbs. 9.25@10.85. Packing sows 8.05@9.30. Pigs, medium to choice 90 to 120 lbs. 9.00@10.25.

WHEAT: receipts 2,000; fed steers predominating; very little done; market unevenly lower; excessive supply of good to near choice steers here. # FALL OPENING

Here are bright leaves from fashion's notebook for the autumn season that indicate charming new styles interpreted in soft, silky fabrics. Grace is the keynote of the new mode. Even the tweeds and suede-like woolens that fashion coats and ensembles follow the vogue for the subtle, soft lines of the dramatic silhouette. Frocks, millinery, the many clever accessories at Pettibone's all exemplify newest and the best of the newest fashion trends.

New Modes in the Manner of Paris

The Paris manner this season means the feminized silhouette. Conservative interpretations of the radical Paris creations — these frocks and suits and coats show in new details and new cuts the trend of modern fashions. Velvets are stressed, both transparent and panne, in frocks with subtly suggested waistline. Coats develop the feminine line through belts, tucking, novel cut, flared godets at the back or sides, lavish furring.

A Distinctive Fall Presentation

Coming events cast their shadows before — and the fashions you'll see in the smartest places this fall cast their substantial shadows in this early autumn collection. Styles that have been featured at Paris openings have been adapted to the needs of American women and you will see them in the Apparel Section. Here you may select every type of frock and coat you will need for your Fall and Winter wardrobe. Colors strike the woodsy tones: browns, the forest greens, bright blues, hennas and mulberry; and black and white are smarter than ever.

Ensembling the Winter Wardrobe

In a season that pays particular attention to the careful matching of every accessory to the costume as a whole, it is important to match the units of the winter wardrobe to each other. The frock that may be worn with either of two coats or a jacket is thrice valuable. The skirt that harmonizes with jacket and coat makes a four-piece ensemble. Pettibone's departments are carefully coordinated on matters of color and general style, so you may select all the units of a harmonizing wardrobe from the various sections of the store.

Current Events Are Our First Concern

And our last concern too. This store is established to serve moderns — to bring to you things you want now. We present apparel you want for present-day occasions. Now that princess lines are "in" we offer you the princess line in under and outer apparel. In the summertime we had sun apparel for children and grown-ups. Now that Fall has come we ask you to inspect wide arrays of brisk autumn fashions. Our object is to be in tune with the times. And we are. Come and see.
